Planning Content and Goals

Planning Content and Goals

Choosing the most suitable content for the intended goals

Possible goals	Content examples
Create imagery of or claims that evoke pleasure or fun when visitors encounter the corporate offering	Images, words, video
Share access to original ideas or designs	Behind the scenes, blueprints, shared reports
Demonstrate organisational values, including beliefs, principles, or way of acting or operating	Content from the CEO such as published letters or videos, blog posts, annual reports, shareholder meeting content
Highlight associations with originality in design of products, services, ideas, or facilities; exceptional quality of corporate offerings	Trademarks, patents, brand story-telling, product articles, product hero features, examples of exceptional customer service
Showcase the heritage of the organisation and its leaders, or references to historical background	Brand story-telling, imagery, videos, product development and evolution, links to working practices
Explain the sustainability and corporate responsibility programmes, decisions, or actions	Videos showing examples of the corporate social responsibility programme
Generate customer acquisition, conversion or retention	Focused content relating to the desired behaviour, such as emails containing a time-limited offer
Save costs through better targeting	Focused content based on the audience group, such as emailing offers to students towards the end of term when money is in short supply!

Planning the Content Strategy Canvas

Planning the Content Strategy Canvas

- We should try to plan the content taking into consideration objectives, channels, type of content, subjects to be covered
- Diversity should be privileged in the planning

The Content Strategy Canvas

Who are you creating content for?

Explain who you're trying to reach with your content; age, gender, profession, interests, values, etc.

Why are you creating content?

Increase brand awareness

Create interest and desire

Nurture interest and entice the purchase

Retain customers and build brand loyalty

Where will you publish this content?

list channels (website, YouTube, etc.) where you'll publish content

list channels (website, YouTube, etc.) where you'll publish content

list channels (website, YouTube, etc.) where you'll publish content

list channels (website, YouTube, etc.) where you'll publish content

What type of content will you create?

list the types of content you'll create (blog posts, videos, tools, etc.)

list the types of content you'll create (blog posts, videos, tools, etc.)

list the types of content you'll create (blog posts, videos, tools, etc.)

list the types of content you'll create (blog posts, videos, tools, etc.)

How will you create the content?

list the resources you'll need (i.e., people + products/services)

Content Plan

- Content creation is often planned and managed within a content calendar
 - per channel can be good practice
 - allows you to check where there are gaps in the content
 - make sure the content is ready in plenty of time
 - enables responsibilities to be assigned
- Planning content allows timely finding of themes and convenient illustration of content

Digital Content Plan

Digital Content Plan

- Presents the global vision of the content that is intended to be distributed through all channels
- Facilitates the analysis of the distribution of content by personas
- Facilitates the analysis of the distribution of content by goal
- Allows an overview of the distribution of content throughout the month
- Allows to check that all three areas of the funnel are being fed content
